

Interpersonal and Intrapersonal Skills

What Is Interpersonal Communication?

- Interpersonal communication is the process of exchange of information, ideas, and feelings between two or more people through verbal or non-verbal methods.
- It often includes face-to-face exchange of information, in the form of voice, facial expressions, body language, and gestures. The level of one's interpersonal communication skills is measured through the effectiveness of transferring messages to others.
- Commonly used interpersonal communication within an organization includes daily internal employee communication, client meetings, employee performance reviews, and project discussions. In addition, online conversations today make up a large portion of employees' interpersonal communication in the workplace.

The Importance of Interpersonal Communication in the Workplace

- There are many reasons why they are so valued; even though most workplace business is now conducted through online communication channels, it is still necessary to possess verbal skills in order to work effectively with your colleagues and bosses.
- Therefore, interpersonal skills are crucial for business success.

Importance of Interpersonal Skills at the Workplace

Problem-solving

Interpersonal communication skills are necessary because they allow people to discuss problems and weigh the pros and cons of alternatives before coming up with the final solution.

Alignment with business goals

Poor communication between employers and employees can harm the business in many ways. When managers and leaders are unable to clearly communicate tasks, workers can quickly become frustrated and disconnected with the business goals.

Importance of Interpersonal Skills at the Workplace

Trust

According to the American Psychological Association, a quarter of employees in the US do not trust their employers, and only about 50% of them believe that their bosses are open with them.

Change management

Good interpersonal communication is very important during change management efforts within organizations.

Company culture

Interpersonal relationships, especially when executed well, are important for an organizational culture to thrive.

Importance of Interpersonal Skills at the Workplace

Employee recognition

Good interpersonal communication drives more employee recognition. When employees have good interpersonal relationships with each other and their managers, they are more likely to recognize each others' good work and give constructive feedback.

Workplace miscommunication

Managers who maintain professionalism, open workplace communication and a positive attitude are more likely to be seen as approachable by their employees.

Importance of Interpersonal Skills at the Workplace

Effective management and leadership

The ability to foster interpersonal relationships, establish trust and communicate clearly are all crucial skills for an effective leader.

Conflict management

Conflict is normal in the workplace, and we can't always expect from our employees to resolve conflicts in a calm and timely manner. When conflicts like this arise, interpersonal communication becomes crucial for resolving them.

Career development

As many employers are looking for workers with good communication skills, continuous improvements of interpersonal communication skills can bring career progressions for many employees.

INTRAPERSONAL SKILLS AT THE WORKPLACE

Intrapersonal skills, also known as "self-skills" or "self-management skills," refer to the abilities and qualities that enable an individual to understand and manage their own thoughts, emotions, behaviors, and overall well-being in a productive and effective manner. These skills play a crucial role in the workplace as they contribute to personal growth, job performance, and interpersonal relationships. Here are some important intrapersonal skills in the workplace